

Scooby Boom!

A puppy blew up his owner's house after he chewed through a can of deodorant. The cute dog called Barney was left alone for just ten minutes before he caused a terrible explosion which shattered windows, burnt floors and set a sofa on fire. The blast probably caused £2000 worth of damage. Barney, along with two other dogs, escaped uninjured. Owner James Brine said "Dogs chew through everything. We were scared there had been a gas explosion. We rushed home. "

Professor Jim Flaggert, head of chemistry at London university , said the deodorant was highly flammable.

"It is very dangerous stuff " he said. "Obviously dogs can't read the warnings on the tin but owners should be careful. "
