Women's World Cup

The eighth Women's World Cup will be held in 2019. It has been held every four years since 1991.

When Did International Women's Football Begin?

In 1971, the first international women's football competition was held in Mexico. In the competition, six teams played against each other in three groups. The six teams were:

Mexico;

Argentina;

England;

Denmark;

France;

Italy.

What Does International Mean?

International means between lots of different countries.

When Was the First Women's World Cup?

A women's football competition was held in China in 1988. This competition was a test to see if a Women's World Cup would be a good idea. Twelve teams played to win the prize. After an exciting penalty shootout to work out third place, the competition was called a huge success. The first Women's World Cup was held in China three years later in 1991.

Awards and Prizes

The prize for the winning team at the Women's World Cup is a trophy. The trophy weighs 4.6kg and it is 47cm tall. The trophy has a golden band that wraps around a football at the top. The name of the winner is carved on the bottom of the trophy.

As well as a trophy given to the overall winner, there are six smaller prizes to be won:

- the Golden Ball for the best player;
- the Golden Boot for the top goal scorer;
- the Golden Glove for the best goalkeeper;
- the Best Young Player Award for the best player under 21 years old;
- the Fair Play Award;
- the best players overall are picked to be part of an All-Star Team.
