Mark Making

Tomorrow, you will begin your piece of observational drawing using the images provided. Before you start, it is very important to practise your pencil skills. Here are some ideas for you. Some people like to draw a grid and fill in the square or rectangle; others prefer to display them in a line like the example on the left. You can choose which ever you like but don't rush this stage as it will help make your finished drawing successful.

Think about the marks you may need for your final illustration and try to practise those on your mark making sheet.
