

She was busy cooking the dinner in the kitchen. She was excited as her daughter was coming for lunch today. She called through to her son, who was in the front room, and asked him to set the table for her. She couldn't hear any reply so she left the pots boiling on the stove, wiped her hands on a tea towel and went to see if he had heard her. He was playing computer games with head phones in so she had to tap him to get his attention.

Just as he took his headphones off she noticed out of the window that her neighbour had returned home and was about to park his car in front of their house. There would be nowhere for her daughter to park! She ran to the door and as she opened it, a large crane flew over the house. She was so surprised she forgot to speak to her neighbour and stared instead at the magnificent creature flying with its neck outstretched.
