

The Adventure at Camp Sunshine

Once upon a time, in the small town of Willowville, a group of excited ten-year-olds gathered at their school for a special adventure. It was the much-anticipated annual school residential trip to Camp Sunshine. The children knew their resilience and courage was going to be tested as they were going to be doing canoeing, caving and hiking, amongst other things. The school bus, an old green and yellow Ford transit, stood ready, packed with backpacks, sleeping bags, and an abundance of snacks. The children's faces were a mix of excitement and nervousness as they said goodbye to their parents, who had come to see them off.

The journey to Camp Sunshine was filled with laughter and singing. The bus rattled along the winding road, passing dense forests and small villages filled with tiny cottages. Finally, they arrived at the camp. Towering pine trees surrounded them, and a large, sparkling lake glistened in the distance. The children gazed around them in awe. They couldn't wait to explore the adventures that awaited them. Little did they know that more adventures than they could imagine waited for them...

1. What did the children bring with them on the school residential trip, and how did they feel as they said goodbye to their parents?
2. What did the school bus look like, and what kind of landscape did they pass through on their way to Camp Sunshine?
3. What natural elements surrounded the camp, and what was the children's reaction to this environment?
4. How did the children feel about the journey to Camp Sunshine, and what adventures were they looking forward to?
5. Who were the main characters in the story, and what was the destination of their school trip?
